Washington Letter.

[Frem our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, March 22, 1889. The President has so regulated the calls of the office seekers, or the hours during which he may be seen by them, that he is beginning to get some little breathing time. He is moving very slowly so much so in fact that some are already beginning to murmur at his pace. But he says that it is better to go slow and be right than to go fast and be wrong-Among the prominent appointments made by Gen. Harrison since my last letter are the following: Jas. S. Clarkson, of Iowa, to be First Assistant Postmaster General; Smith A. Whitfield, of Ohio, to be Second Assistant Postmaster General; John W. Mason, of W. Virginia, to be Commissioner of Internal Revenue; S. R. Thayer, of Minnesota, to be minister to the Netherlands; Chas. E. Mitcheil, of Conn., to be Commissioner of Patents; Nathan O. Murphy, of Arizona, to be Secretary of that Territory; W. B. Deacon to be U. S. Marshal of New Jersey; J. S. Burton to be U. S. Marshal for Mississippi; E. J. Kursheedt, U. S. Marshal for Louisiana; B. D. Slaughter, U. S. Marshal tor Nebraska; Whitelaw Reid, editor of the N. Y. Tribure, to be a minister to France; Frederick D. Grant, son of Gen. U. S. Grant, of New York, to be minister to Austria; John C. New, of Indiana, to be Consul General at London, and Julius Goldschmidt, of Wisconsin, to be Censul General at Vienna. This is not a long list, but it is everywhere conceded to be

Mrs. Harrison has been quite ill this week with a severe cold, but is now much better, though still confined to her room.

A discussion or perhaps it would be better to say a general expression of views, during a recent secret session of the Senate, as to why the salary of Congressmen should not be doubled, has caused a good deal of discussion here. The Senate Is in favor of it by a large majority, but whether a majority would vote for a bill enacting such a law, is somewhat doubtful. Public sentiment here undoubtedly favors such a change; it is argued that no Representative or Senator can keep house in this city on less than $10,000 a year, and keep up the style and appearance that is expected of him. It is further argued that the cost of living in Washington is now much greater than it was when the present sularies were fixed, but there is another side to the question, and although its upholders are in the minority here, they probably have a large majority of the voters of the country with them. They argue that the present salary, $5000 a year, is enough, and that the people do not send their Representatives and Senators to Washington to spe the manners of the European nobility, nor to try to outdo the coterie of millionaires who have of late years set the pace for Washington society, but to work. It any of them finds $5,000 a year insufficient to live on. let him resign the place to a more ecomical man.

The country is certainly to be congratulated on the prospect of increased efficiency in our postal service. Postmaster General Wannamaker and his capable assistants. Clarkson, Whitfield, and Hazen are all bending their energies to secomplish this much desired reform. One good result is the appointment of J. Lowriz Bell, of Pa., as Superintendent of the railway mail service.
